

TALK IT OVER

Key Scriptures

from the Message:

Philippians 1:1-22

Start reading.

Webster's defines joy as "the emotion evoked by well-being, success, or good fortune or by the prospect of possessing what one desires." ... Similarly, John Piper writes, "Christian joy is a good feeling in the soul, produced by the Holy Spirit, as he causes us to see the beauty of Christ in the word and in the world."

Philippians 1:6

"And I am certain that God, who began the good work within you, will continue his work until it is finally finished on the day when Christ Jesus returns."

Start talking. Find a conversation starter for your group.

- How would you define joy in your life? What brings you joy?
- Besides members of your family, for whom are you most thankful? Why?

Start thinking and sharing. Ask a question to get your group thinking, to create openness.

- Who wrote the letter to the Philippians (Philippians 1:1)? Where was he when he wrote it (Philippians 1:7 & 13)? What were ALL the reasons he was thankful and experiencing joy (Philippians 1:3-8)?
- Discuss Troy's statement, "Unless you learn contentment and joy in your present circumstances there's a good chance you'll never learn it."
- Think a bit before you share your answer with your group. In whom or what "mirages" are you currently placing your confidence?
- Reread Read Philippians 1:6. In whom should we be confident? Who is doing the work? When will He be done?
- Discuss John MacArthur's definition of biblical joy: "The settled conviction that God sovereignly controls the events of life for believers' good and His glory. And is available to all who obey Him."
- Reread Phil. 1:7-8. Do Paul's circumstances affect his deep feelings for those who share in God's grace with him? Do they affect his joy?
- How do your circumstances, both good and bad, affect your feelings toward those who are partners in the gospel? Share examples where difficult circumstances brought people together and deepened their bond of love for one another. Read and discuss James 1:2-4.
- How do you think Paul would write if he were writing about Generations and your small group? Would he be able to thank us for our partnership in the gospel? Why or why not?
- Read Philippians 1:9-11. What brings glory and praise to God?

Start doing. Commit to a step and live it out this week.

- Commit to reading the Book of Philippians (highlight the words joy and rejoice) and make it a priority to join with Generations in our study through Philippians for the next 6 weeks.
- Take Troy's challenge and journal about your pursuit of joy. Be prepared to share at group next week.

Start praying. Be bold and pray with power.

- Read Philippians 1:9-11. Pray for God to reveal to your small group and GC how we can pursue joy through Jesus. Pray that we can love, serve, and encourage those around and that all the glory will be given to HIM.

- Read and discuss the article on the back of this page: "Is there a difference between joy and happiness?"

Question: "Is there a difference between joy and happiness?"

Answer: There is no explicit difference between happiness and joy. Both involve the emotions, both are pleasurable feelings, and both are mentioned in Scripture in passages that equate the two.

A dictionary definition of happiness is "a state of well-being; a pleasurable or satisfying experience." A definition of the word rejoice, related to the word joy, is "to feel great delight; to be glad." Depending on the translation, the Bible uses the words happy and happiness about 30 times, while joy and rejoice appear over 300 times.

Jeremiah 31:13 says, "I will turn their mourning into gladness; / I will give them comfort and joy instead of sorrow." Here, in the parallelism of Hebrew poetry, the words gladness and joy are used synonymously. And Proverbs 23:25 says, "Let your father and your mother be glad, / And let her rejoice who gave birth to you." Being glad is the same thing as rejoicing in this verse. Unless we are willing to say that gladness and happiness are completely different things, then we must say that joy and happiness are linked.

It is common today to hear believers speak of a difference between joy and happiness. The teaching usually makes the following points: 1) Happiness is a feeling, but joy is not. 2) Happiness is fleeting, but joy is everlasting. 3) Happiness depends on circumstances or other people, but joy is a gift from God. 4) Happiness is worldly, but joy is divine. But there is no such distinction made in Scripture, and forcing a distinction between two words that are so obviously close in meaning is unnecessary.

If a person is joyful, then he or she is happy. There's no such thing as glum joy. We cannot drain joy of emotion and still call it "joy." When God's Spirit gives us joy, then we are happy people. Christians should be joyful; happiness should characterize our everyday lives.

James 1:2 says, "Consider it all joy, my brothers, when you encounter various trials." Christians can be happy, even in the midst of difficulties, because we know "the testing of our faith produces endurance. And let endurance have its perfect result, that you may be perfect and complete, lacking in nothing" (verses 3–4). As we persevere through trials, with God's help, our faith strengthens and matures. By God's grace we can be happy despite our circumstances.

Joy is often presented as "true" contentment based on faith. Happiness, in contrast, is often thought of as "false" or "superficial" emotion dependent on circumstances. But this is a false dichotomy. There is nothing in the Bible that suggests we divorce joy from happiness. The two are equal.

Of course, there are different types of joy and happiness. There is a joy that comes from the world, such as "the fleeting pleasures of sin" spoken of in Hebrews 11:25. There is a joy that is part of the fruit of the Spirit (Galatians 5:22). There is a temporary happiness and an eternal happiness, but we can call both "happiness." We don't need to split hairs between the meaning of joy and happiness. We just need to decide where our joy comes from. Are we happy in the Lord, or are we content with the happiness the world affords?

Solomon tried the world's brand of happiness and found it to be lacking: "I said to myself, 'Come now, I will test you with pleasure to find out what is good.' But that also proved to be meaningless. 'Laughter,' I said, 'is madness. And what does pleasure accomplish?'" (Ecclesiastes 2:1–2). The joy of the world is hollow, but the joy of the Lord is rich and abundant. The world's happiness will fade with time, but God's people will be happy forever.

"Those the LORD has rescued will return. They will enter Zion with singing; everlasting joy will crown their heads. Gladness and joy will overtake them, and sorrow and sighing will flee away" (Isaiah 35:10).
